State Chief Requested Conference

It's Urgent To End Demonstrations, He Told President

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama came to Washington today to discuss his state's racial problems with President Johnson.

Wallace, who requested a White House appointment Friday night and was told by Johnson to come at his convenience, flew into Washington at 11:05 a.m. An aide said he had a noon appointment with Johnson.

The governor arrived in a state-owned two-engine plane which has the confederate flag painted on its fuselage.

He was met by his executive assistant, Hunter Phillips, who had arrived early today to make arrangements for the governor's visit. Phillips said Wallace would stop at a hotel briefly to freshen up before going on to the White House Dirksen Asks

The governor brushed aside newsmen trying to question him, stepped directly from the plane into a waiting limousine, and sped off.

GOP Irony In Alabama

Republican leaders in Congress this week have declared their party is outraged by Alabama's denial by force and fraud of Negro voting rights.

It promises action on legislation to firm up Negroes' right to register and vote. Behind this seemingly routine positiontaking is one of the significant schisms in present-day politics. In the 1964 election, Alabama was one of five Southern states whose 52 votes were given to Barry Goldwater because Lyndon B. Johnson's name was excluded from the Alabama ballot.

This political knife movement in Alabama was an act of reprisal against candidate Johnson for being a strong advocate of civil rights. It also resulted in election of five Republican representatives to Congress, in a delegation of eight.

MOST OF ALL, it gave rise to Republican hope and talk of establishing a political beach-head in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia and South Carolina, the Goldwater Southern states in the 1965

But the irony in Alabama is the fact its votes for Goldwater were representative of the Alabamans now doing everything in their fervid imaginations to show irreconcilable opposition to voting rights for Negroes.

The Republican presidential campaign of 1964 in the Deep South appealed directly to these irreconcilable opponents of voting rights for Negroes. Republican candidates elsewhere were at a heavy disadvantage because of this. The party of Abraham Lincoln renounced its birthright.

Negroes voted en masse against Republican candidates in areas outside the South and helped to pile up an insuperable majority for the Democratic candidate in all other state, except Arizona, where the GOP candidate squeaked by with a small majority in his home state.

IT IS AXIOMATIC among political commentators that Southern Negroes, if they had the vote, would vote against Republicans, in national elections.

Even before the 1964 campaign, Negroes tended to vote Democratic, despite the fact the Democratic party was traditionally opposed to letting them vote at

The Republican campaign in the Deep South in 1964 clinched Negro opposition to the party that once built a large part of its voting power on Negro support.

The split this created inside the Republican party during and after the 1964 campaign is one of the many unsolved problems of this schism-cursed party.

It was the costliest deal a political party ever made for five states.

Both Sides Are Overselling

The American Medical Association has compiled newspaper editorials critical of the "medicare" bill before Congress.

The editorials make it clear that newspaper commentators critical of the bill think the general public will be disappointed if it becomes law because it does not offer as much as wishful thinkers think it does.

This is undoubtedly true. No one knows yet what is going to be in the bill, but even if the final version contains more benefits than the original proposal it still will be a disappointment to wishful thinkers. They will have been "oversold."

"Medicare" would provide nothing but hospital and nursing home care according to a strict formula. The benefits would be for participants in the Social Security system and would be taxed in the form of wage deductions.

The vital policy point in the "medi-care" proposal is that benefits would be automatically receivable. There would be no strings attached.

All participants would be entitled to the benefits as a matter of right, just as all participants now are entitled to old-age benefits as a matter of right.

By contrast, the AMA counter-proposal called "eldercare" would benefit only the dy. It provides for others to buy hos pital and medical-fee protection at the same rates, whatever the rates turn out to be when private insurance companies and prepaid hospital and medical fee plans have figured out actuarial risk. But this would be nothing new. Anyone who can afford it can buy protection in this way now.

Millions of U.S. citizens already have private insurance, many in group plans in connection with "fringe benefits" of their jobs. But many dread what will happen when they are forced into retirement at 65 and their protection stops, unless they can afford to pay premiums out of their diminished retirement income.

They do not expect to be povertystricken. They do not expect to need public handouts. Like Americans now using old-age benefits to augment retirement income, they are hopeful of avoiding both charity and poverty.

AMA publicity for "eldercare" has not stressed the vital policy point that it is designed for the wholly and partly indigent. It, too, is being oversold.

The indigent do not worry about hospital and doctor bills. They are being taken care of now. It is people who are reasonably self-sufficient provided they do not get clobbered with an extraordinary illness after 65 who are interested in this "medicare"-"eldercare" argument.

Globe-trotting has been tacked to the official list of "un-American" activities. It is inimical to U.S. interest, says President Johnson. The balance of payments must be improved at any cost.

Travel posters have been taken down in government offices. Even though another reason was assigned, is it not likely the consummate politician in the White House backed away from the traveling he had been looking forward to because he anticipated the sour comments that would be forthcoming?

now is whether it should be a party of David Lawrence "opposition," a "me-too" party or whether it can reap the political advantages of criticism while proposing some workable alternatives.

Obviously, the Democratic party will try to paint the Republican party as just being 'against things" but a minority party has to do two things-to point out the errors and mistakes in the policies of the majority and, at the same time, to create in the public mind a confidence that the party out of power can deal more efficiently and effectively with problems of government if given the opportunity to do so.

Over the years, the function of the incumbent party has been to promote the idea that it alone is capable of benefitting the voters. The party in the minority has usually taken the position that the administration in office is failing to do its duty and that the public is unaware of the dangers that lie ahead as a consequence of such errors.

THE PARTY seeking a majority must show that it is for the people and that the party in power is failing to serve the public interest. Fundamentally, the opposition party ought not to lose itself in an avalanche of words about complex issues that the people at the grass roots don't understand.

There are today many vital questions which are being ignored. The government is running deficits continuously, and the dollar is thereby being weakened. Plainly, an opposi-tion party has the duty to inform the public of the significance of this, because what happens to the money of the land can affect every single individual in it. At the same time, there are many projects which can benefit the people but which the administration is not undertaking, and these the party out of power need have no hesitation in advocating.

Broadly speaking, the welfare of the people of the United States depends upon a free economic system. Hence, those who are interfering with the operations of the national economy are producing unemployment and are weakening the whole profit structure.

Traditionally, the committee's staff has been cut back drastically following presidential elections. But this is not the case under Mr. Johnson.

The struggle between management and labor has been based upon many factors that have gotten out of control. While the American working man is better off than the workers in any other country in the world, it can be shown that he is not getting his just deserts.

He is not sharing in the profits of industry as he should. This is largely because of the unbalanced nature of wage demands, which have plagued weaker companies with high costs that they cannot absorb.

THIS INEVITABLY results in extending the monopoly of the larger units in an industry, as many small companies are driven out of business, and the large ones get larger.

Labor - union behavior is not the only thing that requires governmental attention. There are incentives to the operations of industry itself which have too long been neglected.

Today errors in labor-management relations provide a good example of the need for clarification of existing laws so as to make collective bargaining more effective and thereby reduce the number of strikes

GOP Irony In Alabama

Republican leaders in Congress this week have declared their party is outraged by Alabama's denial by force and fraud of Negro voting rights

It promises action on legislation to firm up Negroes' right to register and vote. Behind this seemingly routine positiontaking is one of the significant schisms in present-day politics.

In the 1964 election, Alabama was one of five Southern states whose 52 votes were given to Barry Goldwater because Lyndon B. Johnson's name was excluded from the Alabama ballot.

This political knife movement in Alabama was an act of reprisal against candidate Johnson for being a strong advocate of civil rights. It also resulted in election of five Republican representatives to Congress, in a delegation of eight.

MOST OF ALL, it gave rise to Republican hope and talk of establishing a political beach-head in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia and South Carolina. the Goldwater Southern states in the 1965 election.

But the irony in Alabama is the fact its votes for Goldwater were representative of the Alabamans now doing everything in their fervid imaginations to show irreconcilable opposition to voting rights

The Republican presidential campaign of 1964 in the Deep South appealed directly to these irreconcilable opponents of voting rights for Negroes. Republican candidates elsewhere were at a heavy disadvantage because of this. The party of Abraham Lincoln renounced its birthright.

Negroes voted en masse against Republican candidates in areas outside the South and helped to pile up an insuperable majority for the Democratic candidate in all other state, except Arizona, where the GOP candidate squeaked by with a small majority in his home state.

IT IS AXIOMATIC among political commentators that Southern Negroes, if they had the vote, would vote against Republicans, in national elections.

Even before the 1964 campaign, Negroes tended to vote Democratic, despite the fact the Democratic party was traditionally opposed to letting them vote at

The Republican campaign in the Deep South in 1964 clinched Negro opposition to the party that once built a large part of its voting power on Negro support.

The split this created inside the Republican party during and after the 1964 campaign is one of the many unsolved problems of this schism-cursed party.

It was the costliest deal a political party ever made for five states.

Both Sides Are Overselling

The American Medical Association has compiled newspaper editorials critical of the "medicare" bill before Congress.

The editorials make it clear that newspaper commentators critical of the bill think the general public will be disappointed if it becomes law because it does not offer as much as wishful thinkers think it does.

This is undoubtedly true. No one knows yet what is going to be in the bill, but even if the final version contains more benefits than the original proposal it still will be a disappointment to wishful thinkers. They will have been "oversold."

"Medicare" would provide nothing but hospital and nursing home care according to a strict formula. The benefits would be for participants in the Social Security system and would be taxed in the form of wage deductions.

The vital policy point in the "medicare" proposal is that benefits would be automatically receivable. There would be no strings attached

All participants would be entitled to the benefits as a matter of right, just as all participants now are entitled to old-age benefits as a matter of right.

By contrast, the AMA counter-proposal called "eldercare" would benefit only the needy. It provides for others to buy hossame rates, whatever the rates turn out to be when private insurance companies and prepaid hospital and medical fee plans have figured out actuarial risk. But this would be nothing new. Anyone who can afford it can buy protection in this

Millions of U.S. citizens already have private insurance, many in group plans in connection with "fringe benefits" of their jobs. But many dread what will happen when they are forced into retirement at 65 and their protection stops, unless they can afford to pay premiums out of their diminished retirement income.

They do not expect to be povertystricken. They do not expect to need public handouts. Like Americans now using old-age benefits to augment retirement income, they are hopeful of avoiding both charity and poverty.

AMA publicity for "eldercare" has not stressed the vital policy point that it is designed for the wholly and partly indigent. It, too, is being oversold.

The indigent do not worry about hospital and doctor bills. They are being taken care of now. It is people who are reasonably self-sufficient provided they do not get clobbered with an extraordinary illness after 65 who are interested in this "medicare"-"eldercare" argument.

Both sides should be careful not to oversell their proposals. Both sides have been doing it.

SO FAR Mr. Johnson has sent 15 special messages to Congress and in every instance the 71 new congressmen have been sent a fact sheet on them, a television script and a "speech section" for use as they desire.

During the presidential campaign, the same organization mailed the congressional candidates suggested speeches. The freshmen also received a committee-prepared handbook which tells them how to organize a congressional office and how to deal effectively with constitu-

According to one source, the committee does not have any big bank account, but the administration believes that more than enough money will come into its treasury in months ahead to sustain the operation on a continuing basis.

Material prepared by the national committee is expected to reflect faithfully the position of the President. But committee staff members emphasize that the congressmen don't have to make use of the services if they don't want to.

The largest gorge in the world is the Grand Canyon on the Colorado River in Arizona extending a distance of 280 miles, varying in width between five and 15 miles, and in some sections being more than a mile cance of this, because what are never discussed by the pollticians, because they are afraid of some adverse votes. Yet everyone who understands the economics of America realizes that artificial factors are today the cause of instability in wages

Maybe the Republican party will someday be found on the side of those who are ready to criticize the failure of govern-ment to accomplish for the worker what labor unions have not accomplished, not merely by way of income but by way of better working conditions.

The struggle between management and labor has been based upon many factors that have gotten out of control. The government today has bestowed vast powers upon labor unions. and their leaders have become politicians interested in giving the impression that they are gaining more and more for their members.

Actually, conditions are being created which, for instance, have caused more and more automation to be introduced and many employes to lose their jobs.

While the American working man is better off than the workers in any other country in the world, it can be shown that he is not getting his just deserts. He is not sharing in the profits of industry as he should. This is largely because of the unbalanced nature of wage demands, which have plagued weaker companies with high costs that they cannot absorb.

THIS INEVITABLY results in extending the monopoly of the larger units in an industry, as many small companies are driven out of business, and the large ones get larger.

Labor - union behavior is not the only thing that requires governmental attention. There are incentives to the operations of industry itself which have too long been neglected.

A party of opposition can delineate the unfavorable currents in our national economy and propose remedies for them. It also can recognize the merit of the American system and improve it.

Today errors in labor-management relations provide a good example of the need for clarification of existing laws so as to make collective bargaining more effective and thereby reduce the number of strikes and their duration. The Republican party has plenty to do as a party of opposition. Its role should be opposition to all proposals that hurt the people, and approval of those projects which will help the private-enterprise sysem to increase the ea management and the share of the workers. Sociological benefits will then ensue as business improves and treasury receipts multiply through successive epochs of prosperity. What the country needs is a political party that is really for the people.

Through The Years

THIRTY YEARS AGO - The Ohio Relief Commission at Columbus allocated $8,657 for grading and draining of Nicholson Field at Wellsville.

Aide Of Ohio Society Will Be Local Speaker

Dr. Herald B. Monroe, general secretary of the Ohio Christian Missionary Society, will be guest speaker Sunday at the morning worship at the First Church of Christ, when Women's Day will be observed.

Mrs. William McDaniel will have the Scripture and call to worship; Mrs. E. C. Traylor, morning prayer; Miss Mildred Rose, introduction of speaker, and Mrs. George Marshall, piano prelude. The elders and deacons will serve as usual.

Dr. Monroe came to the staff of the Ohio society as director of Christian education in January 1943, following pastorates at the Church of Christ in Hicksville and the High St. Church of Christ at Hamilton. He assumed his present position Oct. 1, 1946. He was graduated magna cum laude from Bethany Col-

Tri-State's Irish Prepare For Annual Shamrock, Shillelagh Salute To St. Patrick And 'Auld Sod'

"Sure, and it's a grand day," they'll be saying come

"They" are the O'Briens, O'Hanlons, Kennedys, Glennons and other Irish of the Tri-State District who will be wearin' the Green on St. Patrick's Day.

It is remarkable that the small island, 150 miles wide and 275 miles long, has contributed people whose song and wit and unique personality has been so significant in Western Civilization, and especially in the United States.

The isolation of the Irish on their Emerald Isle, however, enabled them to remain individual-protecting them from the invasion by the Romans and later continental influences and aiding them in their 700-year fight against British domination.

THE ANNUAL TRIBUTE to St. Patrick reveals the deep debt the Irish owe to the venerated prelate.

A lack of written record and conflict over details of his life and times leave the true story of the saint clouded, but it has been established he was captured when about 16 by an Irish raiding party, either in Britain or France, and taken to Ireland, where he served as a slave, herding sheep for six or seven years.

The Gaelic Celts had arrived on the island about 350 B.C., subjugating earlier inhabitants who had come from Spain. One of these later Celtic kings, Niall (whole descendents were O'Neills) undertook a series of attacks upon Britain and the continent and it was in one of these raids Patrick was taken.

The Lighter Side

Want to have some harmless fun? Then dust off some of

You'll find the results amusing, fascinating and some-the song titles which made the "Hit Parade" when Mom and

How about this for a starter: "Nobody Else Can Love Me

Like My Old Tomato Can.'

If that doesn't shake you to the very depths of your old gramophone, then try these on for size ("78", that is): "I'm A 12 O'Clock Fellow In A 9 O'Clock Town," "I'm Sitting Pretty In A Pretty Little City" and "Some Day

You'll Be Sorry That You're Glad."

WITH A RECKLESS and carefree "I like my wife, but oh you kid," let's skip over the 88 keys to the following: 'Angels? We Call Them Mothers Down Here," "Daddy, Your Mama Is Lonesome For You" and "When The Corn Is Waving, Annie Dear.'

World War I produced some of the most stirring, patriotic, heart-warming and tear-provoking tunes that were ever

Here are three from those trying days, however, that we feel sure Tin Pan Alley would be more than happy to forget: "Would You Rather Be A Colonel With An Eagle On Your Shoulder Or A Private With A Chicken On Your Knee?" "We Don't Want The Bacon, What We Want Is A Piece Of The Rhine" and "If He Can Fight Like He Can Love, Good Night Germany.

And how about this one from World War II: "Get Your Gun And Come Along, We're Fixin' To Kill A Skunk" (the skunk being the Japanese Empire and the motivating force behind the lyrics being the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor).

THE ABOVE titles are all for real! There are many, many more just as unbelievable. These are merely some that came to mind with a minimum of effort and thought.

When one writes on "The Lighter Side" there is no occasion—or desire for that matter—for research. Research is for the "heavier side." So if you recall other songs as funny, or funnier, all well and good. But keep them buried in dust of days gone by. We couldn't stand any more!

To wind this thing up on a continued sour note, we offer our own contributions to today's "Hit Parade." They're horrible examples of what happens when the head starts spinning along with the old "78's." And fortunately they're not available at any record or sheet music store! Here they are: "When It's Apple Blossom Time In Normandy, I'll Love

"No Onions Tonight, Dear, I'm Already Dancing With Tears In My Eyes.'

"I'm Flying Home To You; My Heart's Not Aching, But

'THE ROOF LEAKS, The Sink's Stopped Up, We Have No Coal, So Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey!

'I Only Had Eyes For You Till I Dropped My 'Contacts'." "Hurry With The Detergent, Honey, I'm Tired Of That Little Gray Home In The West.

When It's Tulip Time In Holland, I Will Pucker Up For

"When The Swallows Come Back To Capistrano, Rush For The Baking Soda, Mother!

'My Sweetheart's The Man In The Moon, But He's Getting Tired Of Dodging Spacecraft.'

In case there's any doubt, the above AREN'T for real!

personal loan from a bank or payment of $26.50. finance company should understand.

These are important in deciding whether the loan is on reasonable terms and worthwhile. With personal borrowing at an all time high, it's a good idea to know the cost of your actions.

Cost may sometimes include not only the interest but any "extras", such as closing costs and credit investigation, service charges or credit life insurance. You should know of such costs added to the loan or paid in advance or if the interest and/ or such charges are deducted from the amount borrowed and only the remainder paid over.

FEW BORROWERS stop to realize that when retail purchases are financed and repaid in installments the quoted rate of 6 per cent, for example, may be misleading. The true finance charge could be approximately 12 per cent, which might make the borrower reconsider

There are two widely used methods to compute interest. One is called the "add on." In this method the rate is added to the principal to get the total amount of the note. This is then divided by the number of months to get the monthly payment.

For example, borrowing $300 at 6 per cent (for a year) would be $18 finance charge. $300 plus $18 equals $318. Di-

> The other method, the simple interest, is best illustrated this example: $300 at 6 per cent simple interest payable in 12 installments would be a rate of ½ per cent per month on the unpaid balance. Thus each month there is less on which to apply interest.

IN SMALL loan companies, the law provides them with an entirely different rate as set forth in the Small Loan Act. These rates are much too complex to illustrate here.

A 11/2 per cent a month carrying charge on a store account doesn't seem highbut that is 18 per cent a year, which is mighty steep interest. Rather than charging or financing something involving a carrying charge, it may be far cheaper to borrow the money on an ordinary loan and pay for the purchase. For example, $100 borrowed for 6 months and repaid at the end of the term, at 6 per cent simple interest, costs only $3.

In addition to the cost of a loan, these questions also will be pertinent to the situation:

Does the lender require collateral or co-signers? If so. what can the borrower do to meet the requirements? (Collateral or co-signers may enable one to borrow on more favorable terms.) When does the borrower get his money? Must he apply and then wait?

What about repayment? Is by installments, or all at

West Virginia Faces Slow Population Rise

LADY, Kaempfert

West Virginia's population will grow by only 2,000 persons in the next 20 years, according to estimates of the Census Bureau.

The bureau said the state's present population stands at about 1,797,000 and will reach only 1,799,000 by 1985. If this forecast holds true,

West Virginia will still be under its official 1960 figure when the Census Bureau listed the population at 1,860,421. West Virginia's largest population was listed as 2,005,552 in the 1950 census.

What could be better for a solid meal in the middle of March than good old Irish Stew? Here is a recipe from Mrs. Lillian McKeever of 342 W. 5th St.

IRISH STEW 11/2 lb. lamb shank 1 cup each of turnips, carrots, potatoes and parsnips,

½ cup chopped onion 11/2 tsp. salt ½ tsp. paprika 1 tsp. celery seed

2 tblsp. fat 11/2 cup boiling water

This may be cooked in a pressure cooker or roasting pan. Cut meat into two-inch cubes and brown in the fat in the cooker. Add water and cover. Set control at 10 and cook for 15 minutes. Reduce pressure instantly, add vegetables and seasonings. Cover and set control at 15 and cook for five minutes longer.

For a dutch oven or roasting pan, brown the meat in fat, add the water, cooking until meat begins to get tender, add the vegetables and continue cooking until done.

Want to have some harmless fun? Then dust off some of the song titles which made the "Hit Parade" when Mom and Dad were tripping the light fantastic

You'll find the results amusing, fascinating and sometimes incredible.

How about this for a starter: "Nobody Else Can Love Me Like My Old Tomato Can.'

"I'm A 12 O'Clock Fellow In A 9 O'Clock Town," "I'm Sitting Pretty In A Pretty Little City" and "Some Day You'll Be Sorry That You're Glad.'

World War I produced some of the most stirring, patriotic, heart-warming and tear-provoking tunes that were ever

Here are three from those trying days, however, that we feel sure Tin Pan Alley would be more than happy to forget: Would You Rather Be A Colonel With An Eagle On Your Shoulder Or A Private With A Chicken On Your Knee?" "We Don't Want The Bacon, What We Want Is A Piece Of The Rhine" and "If He Can Fight Like He Can Love, Good Night

And how about this one from World War II: "Get Your Gun And Come Along, We're Fixin' To Kill A Skunk" (the skunk being the Japanese Empire and the motivating force behind the lyrics being the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor).

THE ABOVE titles are all for real! There are many, many more just as unbelievable. These are merely some that came to mind with a minimum of effort and thought.

When one writes on "The Lighter Side" there is no occasion-or desire for that matter-for research. Research is for the "heavier side." So if you recall other songs as funny, or funnier, all well and good. But keep them buried in the dust of days gone by. We couldn't stand any more!

To wind this thing up on a continued sour note, we offer our own contributions to today's "Hit Parade." They're horrible examples of what happens when the head starts spinning along with the old "78's." And fortunately they're not

QUESTION: Is there something heavier than lead?

ANSWER: We speak of things being as light as a feather or as heavy as lead, so we often get the impression that lead is the heaviest of all materials. But this impression is incorrect. Take the hard metal osmium; it is twice as heavy as lead, as our picture suggests. Osmium is silver-gray in color and is refined from ores containing another interesting metal, platinum. There are mines in Tasmania and California engaged in digging out this platinum ore. Osmium is a strange and unusual metal. Besides its great weight, it has an unpleasant smell. When heated sufficiently, it gives off a very poisonous vapor which may cause blindness. Though it is a hard metal to handle, being brittle and tough to work, it has special uses in manufacturing, such as for phonograph needles and to tip goldpointed fountain pens.

Osmium and another strange metal element, iridium, are said to be the densest of all known earthly materials. A dense material is one which has a great deal of matter crowded into it.

FOR YOU TO DO: Look up "platinum" in an encyclopedia. This is another of the heaviest known materials, but it is much more useful and more easily worked than osmium. Its beautiful silver-white color suggested the name "plat-inum blonde" for a girl whose hair color is extremely light.

Brenda Bowdle of Malvern, Ark., wins today's combined prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review.
